Dear Mr President:

In connection with your recent announcement regarding the retirement of members of the Staff there are two or three things to which I should like to draw your attention.

In the case of unmarried men I think the regulation putting them on a different basis from the married men is hardly fair. I do not know much about schemes for retiring allowances, but I have not heard of any in which married and unmarried men receive different pensions. There are a number of men on the Staff who accepted the conditions of the Carnegie Foundation as submitted to them. They have gone forward upon the basis then presented until, approximately, a year ago, when they learned that their hopes are not to be realized. I do not speak for any of these men, but I should imagine that if they had understood that such a regulation as recently promulgated was to come into force they would have made provision to meet conditions which differ so radically from their married confreres. I think there are not very many of them and it seems to me that the Board of Governors would gain very greatly in the esteem of the Staff if they made up to these unmarried men the full amount to which they would have been entitled had no change been made in the Carnegie regulations. This seems the more reasonable when one recalls the fact that the University is willing to meet from one-fifteenth to onethird the retiring allowance in other cases. It looks as if there were some justification for dealing with these men in a similarly generous spirit.

Another point has to do with the man who is a widower. Is he to be dealt with as an unmarried man or as a married man?

I should like to raise one other point,-and that is whether the members of the administrative staff are eligible to come under the insurance scheme. I am thinking of such men as Mr Fennel, Mr Laidlaw and Mr Reid, secretaries of faculties not on the teaching staff, women assistants in the Library,-whose positions are virtually permanent.

I shall be grateful if you would consider these matters in determining the policy of the University.

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr President:

Last Fall we held the Examinations for the Riddell and Matthews Scholarships in Modern History and awards were made for both of them. I learn from the Bursar that the funds for the payment of these Scholarships have not been paid to him. I believe that the negotiations were carried on between the donors and Professor Wrong and that the moneys have been paid at his suggestion whenever awards were made. In his absence I hesitate to take any steps and would be glad if you would approach Mr Justice Riddell and Mr Matthews. $200 $100
I make this request the more readily because when the Scholarships were established it was on the understanding that there should be three awards and the last of these was made in November, 1918.

Announcement appears in the Junior Matriculation Curriculum of this year. I think it would be weel to ascertain if the Scholarships are to be continued,- I should need to know this in order to make copy for the next issue of the Curriculum.

Yours very truly,

The Registrar,

University of Toronto.

Dear Mr. Brebner:

I have to inform you that owing to conclusive evidence of Miss Margaret Ross having taken an article which was not her own and having made false statements with regard to it the Senate of the University at its meeting on Thursday, May 29th, resolved that she should withdraw from the University and that her registration as a student should be cancelled from that date.

Yours sincerely,

President.
